Ian MacLeod

is counsel at Lenczner Slaght.

Ian has a general litigation practice, which includes commercial litigation, employment and professional liability and regulation. His commercial practice includes class actions, contractual disputes, and shareholder disputes. Ian has an active professional liability practice, acting for physicians in civil and regulatory proceedings and also prosecuting on behalf of professional regulators, including The Law Society of Upper Canada and the College of Massage Therapists of Ontario. Ian has appeared before all levels of court in Ontario as well as various administrative boards and tribunals.

During the course of his legal studies, Ian represented clients at Ontario courts and participated in law reform initiatives with the Community and Legal Aid Services Programme at Osgoode Hall Law School. He also served as a research assistant to a professor of securities law.

Prior to pursuing his law degree, Ian was active in competitive swimming. He represented Canada at the World University Games and was honoured as the University of Toronto's Male Athlete of the Year.

- Liquidated Damages or Unenforceable Penalty? The Perils of Charging Administrative Fees for Breach of Contract – A contractual provision which entitles a party to an excessive administrative charge on default may be considered an unenforceable penalty clause. Notwithstanding parties' general freedom to negotiate their own remedies, Courts will find overly onerous damages provisions unenforceable. This was exactly the situation in RCAP Leasing Inc v Martin.
