

Lynne McArdle

is Research Counsel at Lenczner Slaght.

Lynne's practice is focused on legal research, written advocacy, and advice. She uses her thorough understanding of the law to help our clients analyze their complex legal problems and execute the best litigation strategy.

Prior to joining Lenczner Slaght and after starting her career practicing litigation at a large full-service firm, Lynne spent 20+ years practicing litigation for the provincial Crown.

During her career, Lynne has acted for clients in a wide variety of proceedings including oppression and dissent claims, commercial disputes, various class actions and injunctions, an aggregate claim for the recovery of health care costs caused by smoking, judicial reviews, and the defence of Crown attorneys and police officers. Lynne has appeared at all levels of court including the Supreme Court of Canada.
