Malcolm McCarron

is an associate at Lenczner Slaght.

Malcolm summered and articled at Lenczner Slaght where he gained experience in a variety of practice areas, including commercial arbitration, construction, employment litigation, and emerging copyright issues arising from artificial intelligence.

Malcolm graduated from Western University, Faculty of Law in 2025 where he has consistently demonstrated academic excellence, earning recognition as one of the top 15 students in his class. He has a strong passion for advocacy, competing in several moot competitions, including the Hicks Morley Labour & Employment Moot, the BLG Labour Arbitration Moot, the WLHA Medical Malpractice Moot, and the Bowman National Tax Moot, where he achieved semifinalist status and was the top-ranked appellant oralist.

Beyond mooting, during his time at Western Law, Malcolm worked as a research assistant, contributing to the editing and proofreading of the latest edition of Fridman's The Law of Contract in Canada. He also worked as a caseworker with the Western Intellectual Property & Innovation Legal Clinic, where he assisted clients with a range of intellectual property matters.

Prior to his legal studies, Malcolm earned a Bachelor of Science in Physics from Western University, completing an honours thesis on semiconductor efficiency measurement techniques. Before his transition from science to law, he worked with the Ontario Provincial Government, developing a software to optimize vaccine distribution across Ontario during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic.
