Hamilton officials are sifting through 3 million documents in preparation for parkway inquiry

Eli S. Lederman was quoted in the Hamilton News article "Hamilton officials are sifting through 3 million documents in preparation for parkway inquiry" on May 1.

Eli Lederman, of Lenczner Slaght Royce Smith Griffin, who is the city's counsel in the Red Hill Valley Parkway inquiry, told councillors on April 29 that his team has reviewed about 3 million documents and identified 30,000 of them relevant to the inquiry.

"That process has been a lengthy one, but a valuable one," said Lederman.

He said officials are continuing to examine the documents taken from city officials' files and it is expected the process will be wrapped up by the end of June.

"We still think there is a significant volume capture in the remaining drivers we are searching," he said.
