Lenczner Slaght Welcomes Expert Construction Counsel

Canada’s leading litigation firm is pleased to announce that Aaron Grossman has joined our Construction and Infrastructure Group as Counsel.

Aaron’s practice focuses on litigating disputes within the construction and real estate sectors. As a result of his extensive educational and practical experience in structural engineering, Aaron excels in highly technical cases which require expert evidence. He can speak the same language as engineering professionals allowing for efficient and successful representation of his clients from the outset of a matter through to trial.

Aaron is also experienced in resolving complicated engineering and construction disputes by negotiation and mediation. His clients look to him for strategic and practical advice to resolve their technical legal disputes in the courtroom and the boardroom.

Prior to attending law school, Aaron studied and practiced structural engineering, concentrating on building design and construction. Before joining Lenczner Slaght, Aaron was a partner at a mid-sized law firm in downtown Toronto.

Welcome, Aaron!
